Appeals in the minority opinion in the case of Spevack v. Merrill, 1955, 7 Misc.2d 435, 165 N.Y.S.2d 193, at page 200, is eloquent: "The purpose of the practice of law is to aid in the administration of justice and to promote legal education. It is the duty of members of the bar, as officers of the court, to assist in the prosecution of cases. There are many instances where a client may be beyond the reach of legal process or the client is either unable to or unwilling to afford counsel. In those instances a lay person or group is often required to do the work of an attorney or attorney at law in the affairs of his client. Furthermore, many matters which are small or of inconsequential value are brought to an attorney by laymen who do not have the resources or the confidence to employ an attorney at law. Hence, an attorney's office is a place where there is a place for the free interchange of ideas. The attorney-client relationship should be a privileged one; one on whose judgment the attorney
