complete and up-to-date study of the subject, making it probably the most essential textbook for students of Indian architecture. However, it still has the advantage of being the product of an architectural historian as opposed to a historian of architecture. Tadjell is a past president of the Indian Institute of Architects, New Delhi, and a Royal Overseas League Fellow. He has had a long and distinguished career as an architect, designing a number of school buildings and a number of commercial buildings. His important work on the history of Indian architecture has also been praised by many architects and scholars." Publishers Weekly, 22.1.1995. Page 10.
