On-Screen Takeoff is a feature that allows the user to launch a program with just a button on the keyboard. It allows you to do this when you are using a computer mouse. When you use the mouse, you do the same thing as before - you press the button and the cursor moves. As before, you can also move the cursor by pressing the up or down arrow keys. But On-Screen Takeoff does it differently. When you press a button, you start the program. You don't move on the screen.
