Best storage devices available for people with unlimited data plan [13/03/2015 20:31] I have a mobile data plan that has been providing me with an unlimited data bundle. Now I have a desire to have a portable, easy-to-use system that would allow me to install and use apps on it. Of course, I use my computer and tablet for that. However, my smartphone is not made for installing and using applications. I don't want to use it as my main personal system. So what I am looking for is a portable device that could fulfill my needs. Just like my first phone, I want a phone with a large screen and I want an app store. I also want my phone to have applications that allow me to perform simple tasks such as toggling wifi, checking the network status, performing backups to cloud, organizing files etc. My options seem to be minimal. I tried to use a friend's phone but the only app store I could find was the only one available in the country. So I have a limited options in my hands. On the other hand, I could use my tablet as a personal system and install all the apps I want. However, I would like to have a phone that has a screen size of 5 inches or more. Not that I don't use apps on my tablet. I just don't want to copy data from the one device to the other one when I am travelling. If a tablet has a bigger screen, I would be more flexible. Because of the limitation, the biggest option I could think of is the LG G7. However, I don't know what it offers. This Android phone is as big as my smartphone. How much extra storage space could I get if I have a mobile data plan? What's the app store like? Will

Free Video Downloader provides an easy way to convert YouTube videos to MP3 and download them from the browser. Video downloaders often fail when they try to download a newly uploaded video. The video might still be available to the public however, and it may not be good to download it. Other problems may not occur until the file is almost completed. Video downloaders also keep a log of the downloads which can be used to identify missing files. We recommend using a video downloader to download videos.Q: How to display a Toast message for a single number inside an array I have an array of 20 elements inside which each element has a value 1-10, so basically 10 numbers from 1 to 10. How can I call each number inside the array and display a Toast message when a specific value is reached (For example when the value 10 is reached). This is how far I have got so far: ArrayList assignedList = new ArrayList(); @Override protected void onCreate(Bundle savedInstanceState) { super.onCreate(savedInstanceState); setContentView(R.layout.activity_main); assignedList = new ArrayList(); Random random = new Random(); for (int i = 1; i
