Postoperative adhesions and oblitative phlebosclerosis are major complications of abdominal and pelvic surgeries, the former of which are often associated with intestinal obstruction, infertility, and chronic pelvic pain, while the latter results in pelvic congestion. Adhesions and phlebosclerosis are chronic intractable diseases that defy diagnosis and treatment. In addition, approximately 25-30% of all abdominal surgeries are complicated by development of adhesion-related complications that often require second-look laparotomies. At present, both adhesions and obliterative phlebosclerosis are unavoidable, painful, and progressive diseases, for which diagnosis and treatment have long eluded scientists and clinicians. A more comprehensive understanding of the cellular and molecular mechanisms of the initiation and perpetuation of these debilitating, fibrotic diseases is critically needed to reduce their incidence and effect. In recent years, work from this laboratory identified the presence of stem cells in peritoneal ascites fluid and ovarian peritoneal fluid. These cells were capable of self-renewal, differentiation, and paracrine stimulation of mesothelial cells, smooth muscle cells, and fibroblasts. The goal of this grant is to develop an animal model of adhesion and phlebosclerosis to allow for investigation of their pathogenesis. The specific aims of this proposal are: 1. To investigate the effects of cultured peritoneal stem cells on the adhesion formation in the ovariectomized rat peritoneal cavity; 2. To develop a non-surgical animal model of adhesion and phlebosclerosis for the investigation of peritoneal stem cells; and 3. To investigate the mechanism by which peritoneal stem cells perpetuate adhesion and phlebosclerosis. The general hypothesis is that cultured peritoneal stem cells can generate peritoneal mesothelial cells that promote adhesion formation, and then the adhesions further induce the mesothelial cells to produce an extracellular matrix that represses proliferation of the mesothelial cells. This type of vicious cycle would result d0c515b9f4

Barack Obama will campaign for the Democrats in Wisconsin this week, while John McCain refuses to visit the state. McCain's campaign has blamed its exclusion from the campaign as a result of McCain's decision not to stump in Wisconsin, but this is merely the latest example of the so-called 'mainstream media' twisting the truth in order to further the Obama campaign. The latest example of this, was the revelation that, according to the 'fact checker' at FactCheck.org, this week is actually McCain's the 5th visit to Wisconsin, as he has previously campaigned there. This meant that, according to Factcheck, McCain had campaigned in Wisconsin 31 times, after all. Of course, not all of McCain's visits to Wisconsin have been just ordinary campaign visits. Much like Obama's visit to Wisconsin, McCain's other visits have included town hall meetings, rallies, and campaign appearances. The latest campaign swing was McCain's visit to Green Bay, along with a rally with BMO Harris Bank. McCain's visit to Green Bay only involved him visiting a small area in the Green Bay suburb, but Obama's visit to Wisconsin has involved town hall meetings in the far northern part of the state. This is no accident; indeed it is the work of Obama's campaign. In fact, even Obama's former campaign manager, David Plouffe, admitted this when he spoke to the Milwaukee County Government. Plouffe said: "We're going to

Sv. Marka Katicice koja je pružala veliku zahvalnost koprivničkoj djeci, a posebno dijelu hrvatskih branitelja, uz veliku ulogu Hrvatske vlade koja je koprivnja kazala da stoji iza ovih sezona u Hrvatskoj, nas je uvjerila i priča o Ljubavi za život. "Ljubav za život" poručila je Katika koprivničkim biskupom Adrijanom Zlatećem nakon koja je dijela branitelja Hrvatske kazala da stoji iza i neprijateljskih dijelova te Hrvatske vlade. Za riječ mi i glas događaju i novinarka N1. "I neprijateljski", ponovila je koprivnička biskup počeo s govorom odgovarajući ljudima koji su došli iz drugih zemalja. "Zato što su mi iz Hrvatske dali predsjednički izbor", dodala je. "Ako gledate televiziju, svi ostali pomaju ljude" "Mi se ovdje imamo brane s Hrvatske vlade, a ne s HDZ-om, ako se u Hrvatskoj pomiše ono što smo i mi znali vidjeti nove godine. Ne
